ch delighted, in fact almost Opposition made itself heard for the first time last night in a statement is-sized by Nathan L. Ottinger, a real es-iate broker with offices at Seventh Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street. He points out that several of the retailers are "squatters" in the shopping zone, and offers the suggestion that the comits activities to the area for factory purposes, but which happen to be in close proximity to the establishment of another one of the signers.

"Any plan of relief, to be successful, should and must be unselfish. The method proposed borders dangerously near boycott. If it should be proved that this proposed 'preference' in purchase was a boycott there is a Federal law which no doubt could and would be invoked for redress.

"There is no use in locking the stable door after the horses have gon. A certain portion of the district in question has already been violated with factory buildings. But the section between Lexington and Seventh Avenues and north of Forty-second Street and south of Fifty-ninth Street still remains practically free of loft buildings. This is the logical future retail section of New York. Let the work of the signers of the advertisement be constructive and not destructive."
